Southern Rock Lick is a free video guitar lesson by Jody Worrell that will teach you how to play a lick in the key of D. The use of double stops and syncopation in this lick really give it the feel of a Lynyrd Skynyrd riff. Check out the tab and try practicing the lick along with Jody.

You know this is in the D Position because it is pulled out of this D Barr Chord shape - you bar the B, G and D strings at the 7th fret with your index finger and mute the A string with the end of your index finger and the E string with your thumb - all you get is the chord and none of the lower strings.
